

BLISS needs a home. With you?

Bliss is a spayed German Shepherd/Blue Heeler mix, about 12 months old. She is very sweet with other dogs and loves to play with them. She was rescued out of a very crowded, high-volume shelter where she had practically grown up. She is so sweet when she knows you, but due to the situation of living so long in a shelter like that, she is afraid of people she hasn't yet learned to trust, and it would be best if any children at home are older children. Bliss was previously adopted into a very busy household which was not the best situation for her. She needs to be in a home with a very experienced "dog person" who can help her blossom fully into the wonderful dog we know she really is. Our dog trainer is working with her at home and says that Bliss is smart, gentle, and eager to please. She already knows "sit" and "down." She enjoys pushing one of those kibble-dispensing dog toys around the floor to get the dog treats out of it. She learns very quickly and is already learning to be housebroken too. Her new adopters should be willing to continue to crate train her for her housebreaking, as well as for appropriately directing her normal puppy chewing activity. She would be a perfect dog for anyone who lives in a rural area or in the country, has some land, and would like a dog who is a little protective of their home. Another well-adjusted dog at home would work wonders for Bliss too. Our trainer will want to meet all members of the family. Come on up and meet this charming girl. You might decide she should be the newest member of your family. That would make her dreams come true!
